Chapel services, on the theme of "A Cloud and the college’s thrice-weekly morning academic year, during both the Gathering Johnson and others from the Hope chapel beginning of a new sentence,” said Johnson, the sentence. At the end of a period is the “It’s time to put a period at the end of pulpit.

opportunity for words of encouragement from For the seniors in attendance, this is their last Rev. Trygve Johnson is getting ready to preach. It’s the final Sunday worship service, holy name…"

and Psalm 103, which begins “Bless the Lord, Great Thou Art.”

plays a medley of praise and worship songs, with U2’s "Beautiful Day." The band then hands in worship, as the praise band opens that night, with latecomers having to sit in the Memorial Chapel. I...

prominently hanging on the north wall of what it means to walk in the Christian faith. Gehrig can serve as an example of what it means to walk in the Christian faith.

of what it means to walk in the Christian faith. Gehrig can serve as an example of what it means to walk in the Christian faith.

moves on to become president of Hope. In his three years at Northwestern, Johnson organized and facilitated the school’s daily chapel, served as resident preacher, co-supervised the campus ministry staff and program, provided pastoral care and served as a liaison to community pastors and the RCA. In 2005, Johnson left Northwestern to pursue a doctoral degree in theology at the University of St. Andrews in Scotland. It was there that he met Kristen Deede, a University of Virginia graduate who had already spent two years of study at St. Andrews.

"It was clear that he had a deep faith and he was very thoughtful, but he had a fun-loving spirit," she said.

The couple married a year later and completed their studies at St. Andrews. Kristen Deede Johnson is now at Hope as well, as associate director of the Crossroads Project, a program funded by a grant by the Lilly Endowment that seeks to help students develop connections between their faith and vocations, and as an assistant professor of political science.

"She’s an academic, but she loves personal relationships and discipleship," Trygve Johnson said. "She cares about her faith, but not at the expense of her mind."